IN THE HIGH COURT OF UTTARAKHAND AT NAINITAL

Crl. Misc. Application (C-482) No.280 of 2014 With Compounding Application no. 1777 of 2019

Imran Ahmad and OthersApplicants versus

Nabil Khan Respondent

Mr. Navneet Kaushik, learned counsel for the applicants.
Mr. Rajeev Sharma, learned counsel for respondent/complainant.

Hon'ble N.S. Dhanik, J.

By way of present application, moved under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., applicants seeks to set aside the impugned summoning order dated 13.08.2013 as well as entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 258 of 2013, Nabil Khan vs. Imran & Others, under Sections 323, 452, 504, 506 IPC, pending in the court of 1st Additional Civil Judge (JD)/ Judicial Magistrate Dehradun.

- 2. The parties have filed a Compounding Application No. 1777 of 2019 to show that the parties have buried their differences and have settled their disputes amicably.
- 3. It is contended by learned counsel for the applicants that the offences punishable under Sections 323, 504, 506 of IPC are compoundable offences and offence punishable under Section 452 of IPC is not compoundable offence.

4. The Apex Court has dealt with the consequence of a compromise in regard to non-compoundable offences in the case of B.S.Joshi and others vs. State of Haryana and another, (2003)4 SCC 675 and has held as below

"If for the purpose of securing the ends of justice, quashing of FIR becomes necessary, Section 320 Cr.P.C. would not be a bar to the exercise of power of quashing. It is, however, a different matter depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case whether to exercise or not such a power."

Thus, the High Court, in exercise of its inherent power can quash criminal proceedings or FIR or complaint and Section 320 of Cr.P.C. does not limit or affect the powers under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

- 5. Hon'ble Supreme Court has permitted compounding of such offences in the decision of Nikhil Merchant v. CBI and another, (2008) 9 SCC 650.
- 6. Learned counsel for the parties also drew the attention of this Court towards the ruling of Gian Singh v. State of Punjab and another, (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 160, in which Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as below:

"The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus: the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz; (i) to secure the ends of justice or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any Court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or F.I.R may be exercised where the offender and victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity etc; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and pre-dominatingly civil flavour stand different footing for the purposes of quashing, offences particularly the arising commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, High Court may quash criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and victim, the possibility and conviction is remote bleak continuation of criminal case would put accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding."

- 7. Parties are present in the Court today except Irfan Ahmad and they are duly identified by their respective counsel.
- 8. Accordingly, compounding application is allowed. The impugned summoning order dated 13.08.2013 as well as entire proceedings of Complaint Case No. 258 of 2013, Nabil Khan vs. Imran & Others, under Sections 323, 452, 504, 506 IPC, pending in the court of 1st Additional Civil Judge (JD)/ Judicial Magistrate Dehradun are hereby quashed, qua the applicant, on the basis of compromise arrived at between the parties.

- 9. Present C482 application stands disposed of, as above.
- 10. Pending applications, if any, also stand disposed of accordingly.
